21. For (A) half a century, AMP has be (B) the world's leading (C) producer of electrical and electronic connecting devices (D).

- A
- B
- C
- D

22. Since time began, man have (A) looked for ways of sending (B) his messages over (C) longer distances, using (D) for example, drums, arrows, smoke signals and flags.

- A
- B
- C
- D

23. The (A) business of a telephone exchange is (B), on demand, to connect two or more of the exchange terminations (C) together for a period, usually permitting (D) speech signals to pass.

- A
- B
- C
- D

24. Customer's (A) point of view, it is therefore (B) essents (C) that networks and services are (D) compatible.

- A
- B
- C
- D

25. The union committee claims (A) that the specialized (B) carriers represent an exact parallel to

25. The union committee claims (A) that the specialized (B) carriers represent an exact parallel to
Mercury in Britain, which (C) aims to cream off (D) the more profitable inter-city business market.

- A
- B
- C
- D

26. Lass than 30% off (A) business calls get (B)through to the right person (C) at the first attempt (D).

- A
- B
- C
- D

27. Unlike a pieces (A) of ordinary mail, an e-mail advertisement (B) costs exactly (C) the same to send to one person or one million perople-assuming (D) you have a million addresses.

- A
- B
- C
- D

28. Transmission on open-wire lines was the earliest (A) method used for telephone traffic, and this (B) method are (C) still used in the local networks of many (D) countries.

- A
- B
- C
- D

29. Communicating (A) by radio is a method of sent (B) or receiving sounds, pictures and data through (C) the air by means (D) of electrical waves.

- A
- B
- C
- D

30. Transmission from (A) the satellite can give global or spot beam (B) coverage, but they are receive (C) by all earth stations in sight of (D) the satellite.

- A
- B
- C
- D

31. Meetings lead (A) to best (B) decisions, because of (C) the exchange (D) of information and ideas.

- A
- B
- C
- D

32. At (A) the receiving end, the analogue tones are converted (B) back into the binary signals (C) and fed into a thermal heads (D).

- A
- B
- C
- D

33. In large capacity (A) drives there many (B) platters and head assemblies that (C) greatly improved (D) the speed of the multiple activities.

- A
- B
- C
- D

34. Domestically (A), some 70% of (B) Japanese now own a mobile phones (C), so it is tough to find new (D) customers.

- A
- B
- C
- D

35. The use of digital transmission (A) and multiplexing techniques had (B) led to an enormous (C) increase in the (D) capacity of satellites.

- A
- B
- C
- D

36. Space waved (A) propagation of narrow microwave beams (B) is used for (C) point-to-point communication over board bands (D).

- A
- B
- C
- D

37. The goods was (A) showcased at numerous international trade fairs (B) and exhibitions sponsored by (C) the Korea Trade Investment (D) Promotion agency.

- A
- B
- C
- D

38. If (A) the initiative is successful, phone and cable-TV companies (B) will be able to offer (C) a full range of services, from basic to fancying (D), at varying prices.

- A
- B
- C
- D

39. Advances in (A) technology are (B) making possible on an increasingly (C) scale a wide range of visual telecommunication services (D) for domestic and business users.

- A
- B
- C
- D

40. Business users are equally (A) well catered for with special closing (B) areas of Micronet that can (C) be used for private business communications (D).

- A
- B
- C
- D